‘They let us down’: How the CDC fell short in its response to the COVID-19 pandemic

Long considered the world’s premier public health agency, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention has fallen short in its response. New York Times