New York City’s outbreak grew so large that the city became the primary source of new infections in the US as thousands of infected people traveled from the city and seeded outbreaks around the country. New York Times