Coronavirus: Navy, CDC study on infected aircraft carrier provides glimmer of hope for immunity

A study of sailors aboard an aircraft carrier stricken by a COVID-19 outbreak offers new insights into what could make people immune to the coronavirus and the effectiveness of social distancing measures. SF Chronicle