Illinois Health and Hospital Association

A cyberattack on several blood banks tried to raise temperatures to extremely high levels but was thwarted before it could do any damage to blood products or samples. 25 News Now